Support Service Descriptions

BRONZE SUPPORT (Time and Materials)

Bronze Support is simply charged based on time spent (minimum half day) in response to a specific request from the nominated client contact. This type of support is useful where there is a competent in-house resource that needs additional or expert support from time to time to resolve problems

SILVER SUPPORT (Core)

Within our Silver support service we will actively manage the core elements of the IT infrastructure, usually servers and network components, but are not responsible for dealing with individual user problems or first line support. This type of support is useful where there is a relatively small and stable user community and some level of in-house expertise available to be the first point of contact for user problems.

GOLD SUPPORT (Fully Managed)

In our Gold service we will take full responsibility for the IT environment and manage it proactively in collaboration with the client management team. This type of support is particularly useful where the client does not want to maintain any in-house IT expertise but wants to ensure that the systems and networks are always fully operational and achieving optimal performance. It is also useful where there is likely to be significant growth or change in the IT environment.

PLATINUM SUPPORT (Fully Managed + On-Site)

Platinum is same as Gold but with the addition of having a prearranged on-site IT presence to provide an face to face point of contact for staff. This service is useful if the business require very rapid reaction times to support issues or if there needs to be regular interaction between the IT staff and other business areas.
